This Participatory Action Research and PhotoVoice project gave us the opportunity to do outreach together and to learn more about the communities served by each of our programs. Although our communities are different, we realized that there are many similarities between how we do our work and the basic needs of members of our communities.